

Summary of the thirteenth issue
“Generations: Break point or fresh start?”

Editorial

- Boris Martin Sophie Zaccaria* • The impact of generational change on humanitarian aid – p. 1

Perspectives

- Diane Alalouf-Hall François Audet* • Haiti: understanding the underwhelming appraisal of the international humanitarian efforts – p. 6

Focus : Generations: Break point or fresh start?

- Étienne Baudon* • Finding the proper balance between generations – p. 16
- Éric Gazeau* • From enchantment to questioning: the changing face of humanitarian commitment – p. 25
- Amélia Houmaïri-Romy* • Should the “new young humanitarians” hack the system? – p. 35
- Vincent Taillandier*
- William Empson, Cécile Pétriat Stefano Manfredi* • Integration, inclusion, induction: how Médecins Sans Frontières welcomes new generations – p. 47
- Stéphanie Tchiombiano* • Training future generations of international aid professionals: challenges and discussion topics – p. 59

Transitions

- Karine Meaux, Haryanti Sunarta, Chaerul Umam Patrick Verbruggen* • Lessons in localisation: the Fondation de France’s experiences in Nepal and in Indonesia – p. 72

Innovations

- Valéry Ridde, Solange Dabiré, Christian Dagenais* • Use of research by NGOs: a call for reflection and action – p. 86
- Amador Gomez, Pascal Revault, Pawankumar Patil* • Operational research and malnutrition: state of knowledge and food for thought – p. 102

Tribune

- Fabrice Weissman* • Should Médecins Sans Frontières join the fight against global warming? – p. 124

Reportage

- Denis Rouvre et Médecins du Monde* • Unsung heroes, Breaking the silence – p. 142

Culture

- Books • Science to the rescue of universal coverage // The moral of “extreme urgency” in question – p. 159